

OUTDOOR GAMES

FIZZY MAY I?

YOU'LL NEED:

A large open space outside

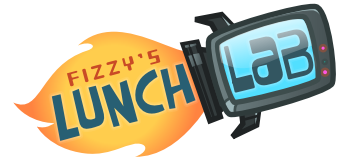

4 or more players

Start and Finish Line Markers

Fizzy, may I take three giant steps?

HOW TO PLAY

To begin, two lines are marked out about 25 feet apart and will represent the starting and finish lines. One person is chosen to be Professor Fizzy. Professor Fizzy stands at the finish line facing the other players who are lined up in a row on the starting line. Each player must in turn ask Professor Fizzy for permission to move ahead. For example, one player might ask, "Fizzy, may I take three giant steps?" Professor Fizzy can respond however he wants, so he may say, "No, but you may take ten baby steps." This is not enough to let the player move though. The player has to ask permission again by saying, "Fizzy, may I?" If Professor Fizzy says, "Yes, you may," the player must go forward as Professor Fizzy instructed. However, Professor Fizzy can say, "No, you may not," and the player cannot move. If the player forgets to ask permission to move ahead or moves the incorrect way, they have to return to the starting line. Everyone must take turns requesting to move ahead, and the game continues until one player crosses the finish line and is declared the winner.

No, but you may take ten baby steps.

